"Overcoating the City."

IDN'T we promise you better overcoat values than the department stores could begin to give you?-And haven't we kept that promise? Were you ever able to buy such nobby stylish coats for so little money before? All we have ever asked is an inspection of our garments. We firmly believe that if every man in Washington who needs an overcoat now could see with his own eyes the coats we are offering, we'd 'overcoat the whole city."

We have never shown a better value than these elegant full-back black and blue English Kersey Coats. Our guarantee for fast color-body uned with worsted-yoke facest with satin-and collar of genuine silk velvet. The 'star' value of the season, at

The dogs at the dog show spent a busy day yesterday, and as a result most of them wore a tired air last night. They ate heartily of the food prepared for them by the managers of the exhibition, and seemed to oberish friendly feelings toward manking. Some of the dogs had passed a sleepless night, being unused to the noise, excitement and late hours of a bench show. Most of these fashionable dogs retire early and lead easy and luxu-ithe stable. The case will be reported to nights of the show business have a ten dency to throw the systems of these hicky Three favorites handed purses, and bets | dogs out of joint. Many of the canines sought to take naps during the day, but made between William Hayward's Mont | were repeatedly interrupted by sympathetic d'Or and Pulsifer and Karrick's Miss Fenny, people who insisted on petting them and which will be decided on Friday. It is informing them what nice dogs they are. Poor little Star, the liver-colored pocker spaniel who suffered an acute attack of homestekness, cried till his voice was unstrong as, d his hair was soaked with tears and was taken home yesterday afternoon Some of the tougher dogs at the show laughest at poor little Star and replied to his plaintive pleadings with yelps of de-rision Carlos, a smooth-coated St. Bernard, Who sat opposite Star, appeared to think the misery of the latter one of the fun-mest features of the show. He sat on his annehet and bowled at the poor little spaniel till Star snivered with fright. Buy Horse, a Russian wolf bound, has earned the reputation among his companions of being the most unsociable dog in exhibition. He has refused to let any other dog lie on his straw and drink from his vessel. He has remained silent, and has not joined in the canine chorus. He has turned his head away from ladies who would patronize him, and made faces at Little Carino, a built terrier across the way. This built terrier has resented the only been prevented from demanding satisfaction from Pay Horse, by the length of his chain.
